Preserves.

We do not know much of the habits of the cave-dwellers, but it is reasonably certain that the wife of the cave-man made everything for him. Of course he killed the bears and rhinoceroses that supplied his table, and he carved those elaborate pictures on tooth-brush handles and paper-cutters which his civilized posterity has found in his dust heaps; but he never did any work. His wife made the fire, cooked the meals, supplied the clothing of the family, and probably made the furniture. The habits of women are wonderfully persistent, and the habit of preserve-making to which the American housewife is so universally addicted is undoubtedly a survival of the domestic habits of the woman of the cave-dwelling age.

Preserve-making is perhaps the very last trace of the cave woman which survives in women of the present century. As man advanced in civilization, woman ceased to be the universal maker of things. In those early ages of which geologists tell us—the stone age, the iron age and the wooden, glass and tin ages, women continued to furnish food and clothes for their husbands and children. They ground the corn or bread, and they spun the ax for clothing, but at the beginning of the present century they had ceased to make anything except stockings and shirts, bed-spreads and preserves. The progress of woman has been rapid during the present generation. She has discovered that there is no good reason why she should make stockings and shirts that never satisfy the deep wants of man's nature, and that cost more than satisfactory stockings and shirts bought at the haberdasher's would cost. The discovery not only emancipated her from thankless and severe labor, but it also enabled man to throw off the burden of bed-spreads, or "comfortables," as they are familiarly called. Man, who in some respects is quite reasonable, found that shirts made by an intelligent workman instead of the hand of affection brought so much peace and comfort into his life that it occurred to him that he could be still more happy were he to sleep under blankets instead of home-made comfortables. Accordingly he himself proposed that the custom of making comfortables at home should be abandoned, and of course woman joyfully accepted the proposal. Thus it has gradually come to pass that preserves are the only articles which housewives now feel compelled to make.

In prehistoric ages the work of preparing food partook of the solemnity of a religious ceremony. The woman of the stone age invoked a separate deity for every vegetable and every sort of meat that she placed on the fire; so that the preparation of hash or soup required her to rise before daylight, and recite a long and complicated litany. Much of this solemnity attaches to preserve-making. It is true that it is no longer spoken of as a religious ceremony, and that the modern preserve-maker does not believe in deities presiding over sugar and fruit and preserve kettles, but she feels that preserve-making is a work to be approached only in the most serious manner.

No ordinary dish is thought to be fit for preserve-making. A special kettle must be consecrated to the sacred work. This kettle is sumptuously lined with porcelain, and costs at least as much as all the preserves that are ever made in it, for it rarely lasts beyond one season. Slight differences of ritual prevail among preserve makers. Some hold that a pound of sugar should accompany every pound of fruit; while others believe that both fruit and sugar should be measured, and not weighed. In the matter of preparing fruit for the kettle there is also a diversity of opinion, and no two housewives are absolutely agreed as to the length of time that the preserve kettle should remain on the fire.

There is really a great deal of labor expended in making preserves. Unlike most other articles of food, they are not finished when they are cooked. They must be put up in jars, and the jars must be covered with paper put on with the utmost care in order to keep the preserves from the air. At least two distinct women are needed in order to make even the smallest quantity of preserves, and their uninterrupted attention must be given to the work from the moment of beginning until the last jar is tied up and placed on the shelf.

The first cost of making preserves is not so great as most men fancy that it is. Indeed, the first cost of, say, six jars of home-made strawberry preserves is usually not more than twice the amount that six jars of the same size would cost if bought of the grocer. Preserve-making is, however, a long and continuous process. At the expiration of a month after the preserves have been placed on the shelf, the careful housewife finds that they are "working," and that they must be immediately "done over." To "do over" preserves is to repeat the entire process of making them from the moment that they are placed in the preserve kettle. This adds to their cost, since it involves hours of labor and the consumption of fresh sugar and other materials. Two weeks later the preserves are found to be "candied," or, in other words, converted into petrified strawberries, fit for nothing except to take the place of gravel on the front walk. Then, and not until then, will the conscientious woman consent to supply her table with preserves bought from the grocer, lamenting, as she does so, that some mysterious fatality always prevents her from making preserves that will neither "work" nor "candy."

It is estimated that only nine per cent. of the preserves made by the women of America are ever eaten except by the most heroic and self-sacrificing husbands. Is it not time that women should abandon this last surviving habit of the cave-dwelling women, and should permit men to buy their preserves as freely as they buy their shirts and stockings.—Harper's Bazar.

Lion Killing a Quagga.

I once had a rare chance of seeing a lion catch and kill his prey in the open daylight. While on a short hunt to the north of Waterberg, in the Transvaal, in the winter of 1874, with a Dutch Boer, we saddled up one afternoon to shoot a couple of quaggas (Burchell's zebra for our followers, quagga meat being preferred above all others by the natives of that country). We had ridden a considerable round without falling in with any, but about an hour before sundown we came across a troop of about five. Galloping up within shot, we fired, when one mare dropped. Re-loading and mounting, we started after the troop, which had now disappeared over a ridge. On gaining the rise we saw the quaggas taking out in the hollow and commencing to ascend a second slope, one or two stallions bringing up the rear, as is usually the case. Cautioning on, my companion suddenly pulled up and pointed out to me a lion trotting swiftly up across the quaggas' line of retreat, behind a few scattered lowlanders and low bushes dotting the slope, evidently with the intention of securing his supper. We moved slowly forward, when the hindmost stallion, thinking we were getting too close, started after his companions at a smart canter. It was now exciting. The quagga was close to the line of the lion's approach; a couple of seconds more and the dark mass of the lion's form shot out from behind a stone on his prey. In a moment the quagga was on the ground. The lion let him instantly, moved a few yards distant and lay down with his head away from the quagga, twitching his tail nervously from side to side, as much as to say: "I have done that properly." The whole thing was done so quickly and suddenly that it is difficult to describe. The lion had not yet seen us, but on riding nearer he turned and in ed, looking rather put out at our appearing on the scene. At first he seemed inclined to bolt, but at last lay down facing us, evidently unwilling to give up his game. Being anxious to examine the quagga, and knowing my Boer friend to be reliable, we rode up to about fifty yards and dismounted. I held the horses, keeping my double rifle in reserve in case of accident. The lion, not liking the look of things, got up and walked a few steps toward us, growing savagely. I told the Boer to shoot straight, which he did, hitting the lion with his old six to the pound on the point of the shoulder; the bullet, passing out behind the other shoulder, dropped the lion on the spot. On examining the quagga it would appear from the claw mark that the lion's left forearm was thrown over the wither and the claws fixed in the shoulder, the right forearm's claws in the chest, the left hind claws had been driven into the flank a little below the level of the hip-bone, the right hind foot evidently on the ground, thus holding the animal as if in a vice, while the teeth had met in the neck about three inches or four in behind the ears, smashing the bone as effectually as a two-ounce bullet. My two front fingers met in the bite-hole. Death was instantaneous. The lion was a full-grown male with perfect teeth. On a previous occasion a riding mare belonging to a friend of mine was killed near Wonderfontein, Transvaal, one night, close to the wagon, while on a biesbok hunt. The mare was hobbled when caught. The claw-marks and bite that killed were identical with those on the quagga. From all testimony that I could gather from old hunters during seventeen years' residence in the Transvaal, and my own limited observation, I would say that the lion uses his claws as a holding power, and kills by bite.—London Field.

The Puget Sound Lumber Trade.

The distribution of lumber from Puget Sound is as wide as its manufacture is active. In one day's cruise I found vessels loading for Boston, San Francisco, Valparaiso, the Sandwich Islands, Valjeo, Mexico, Japan, China, France, England, Australia and South America. The export reported in 1881 was about 175,000,000 feet, valued at about $1,720,000. Of this about 40,800,000 was shipped to foreign ports. The value of the foreign cargoes was about $395,000. It is a sight to see some of the big logs in the booms. I spent a couple of hours among them one night. The electric light, with which almost all these mills are equipped, illuminated the water far and near, making it look like silver in quartz, or the sparkles on a ballet girl's dress. The logs were like lumbering giants in the gloom, and re-used to move as Captain Logg's and I stepped from one to another. Many of them were five feet in diameter, and all were arkless. Mr. George Braun, the foreman of Jackson's logging camp on the Skagit River, lately cut one tree from which were sawed two logs of 32 and 26, and two of 30 feet, in all 118 feet in length. The top of the tree measured 61 inches across. The entire log scaled about 24,000 feet. As Mr. Braun said: "That is like raising 100 bushels of oats to the acre," which they do on the flats just below his camp. But all trees here are except on size, height and symmetry. They make the finest possible spars and masts. Firs 250 feet high, pines 150 feet, cedars 100 feet, are met with in any woodland walk along a logging trail. Ship building, as a natural result, is a great industry. The ship-carpenter at Blakeslee told me as I left that he was just completing his fortieth vessel. He informed me also that the first saw-mill in this region was erected at Seattle in 1853. It would cut about 5,000 feet per day. Now there are eighteen mills, in any one of which the pioneer would be lost. Think of the thick forests—trees crowded together as close as they can grow—and right on the shores of the Sound or its tributary waters, these shores generally sloping so as to make the most acute of log-ways; countless rafts and sheltered harbors; a climate never too cold to work, although sometimes too wet; then the waters of the Sound for log-roads themselves, when a steam-launch can pull a raft anywhere, and one can see why this industry grows so. Where else do conditions as favorable to it exist?

The lumber business is not carried on here as it is in the interior or the East. There are no lumber-yards supplied from the mills. The mills themselves distribute the lumber. Many of them have planing machines and elaborate machinery on the ground floors beneath the saws, where they manufacture dressed lumber, flooring, ceiling, etc. Factories of barrels, pails, etc., etc., group around them, subsisting on what would be refuse. A unique establishment is that of the Stetsons & Post, in Seattle, where house-trimmings, doors, sashes, blinds and moulding are manufactured in connection with a saw-mill. There is great profit in this business. These gentlemen have made $100,000, starting with $1,500 five years ago; but they are hard-working men, practical mechanics, and understand their business thoroughly. The profit in exporting is not less, but of course requires greater capital. The ships carry an average of 500,000 feet every five to eight weeks, at a profit, as near as I can average it, of $2,675 per trip. All of the saw-mill proprietors are wealthy. They are, for the most part, attached to the scenes where their wealth has been made, and spend their time and money at home rather than abroad.—Puget Sound Cor. N. Y. Evening Post.

English Depredations in the Yellowstone Park.

The magnificent Yellowstone Park is in danger of being rapidly destroyed and its natural beauties defaced by wantonness and vandalism unless the Government steps in to protect it. It is said that the first thing the Englishman does after registering at the Brevoort house is to start for the Yellowstone Park and needlessly shoot down scores of its large game—deer, buffaloes, bears, antelope and mountain sheep. Nor are foreigners always the chief sinners in this respect. Many of the most famous Yellowstone geysers have already been ruined by people who amuse themselves by hurling immense trunks of pine trees into them in order to see the water force them high in the air. In many cases these logs have stuck in the water apertures and have completely stopped the spouting. In Wyoming the people are taking steps to put a stop to such vandalism and the wholesale slaughter of buffaloes and other game by English tourists.

KENTUCKY has paid to the general government since 1863, as taxes, $137,000,000.

The supreme court will adjourn to-day until January 3 for the customary holiday recess.

C. P. HUNTINGTON will take possession of the Kentucky Central Railroad January 1st.

A BILL has been offered in Congress to abolish the internal revenue tax on beer and fermented liquors.

The exports of breadstuffs during November amounted to $15,306,494, against $18,025,880 in November last year.

JUDGE J. HOP. PRICE died at Louisville on the 19th inst. The Courier-Journal speaks of him as a righteous judge and a christian gentleman.

THE New York Sun predicts that the Edison electric light in that city is going to be a failure. It is said to be too costly to come into general use.

The whisky bill is meeting with unexpected opposition in the Senate. It will probably not come up again until the civil service bill is disposed of.

The court of appeals has affirmed the decision of the Jefferson circuit court in the case of Geo. Alsop, who was convicted for murdering constable J. S. Harrison in 1881, and sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

A PECULIAR kind of trouble is expected at Lexington. The "demi-monde" indicted at a recent session of the court there have announced their intention, if prosecuted, of "giving away" some of the prominent people of the city.

According to a Frankfort despatch to the Cincinnati Times-Star, the total number of pardons issued by Governor Blackburn during the past eleven months, from January 1st to December 1st, is two thousand six hundred and seventy-three.

The Republican Senate caucus has unanimously resolved to take up the Pendleton civil service reform bill as amended by Messrs. Logan and Allison, and pass it, and also to pass a bill revising the tariff and reducing internal revenue taxation.

The finance committee of the House has reported the bill to extend for two years the period within which persons having whisky on hand, must pay the internal revenue taxes thereon. The bill will go through both Houses in that form without much opposition.

THE Democratic state executive committee has been called to meet the Central Committee at Louisville on the 10th of January, to fix a time and name the place for holding a Democratic state convention to nominate a candidate for Governor and for each of the other state offices, at the ensuing August election.

The editor of the Carlisle Mercury who was the enrolling clerk of the House, during the last legislature denounces as a lie the late charges against Governor Blackburn concerning the suppression of certain state papers. He says: The above is a lie made out of whole cloth. No committee was ever appointed for any such purpose and of course the report was never prepared or stolen. A resolution was passed calling upon the Governor for a list of pardons granted, together with his reasons therefor. Clerks had partially completed this list when the legislature adjourned and their work was laid on the table of Hon. E. W. Turner, the clerk of the House, and he having no authority to dispose of them, handed them to the state treasurer for safe keeping until the next legislature met. This is all the ground there is for the lie.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19, 1882.
The effect of the recent election is visible in the very atmosphere of the capital city. The same Congress that last year squandered millions is now at the opposite extreme, and the other day recommitted the bill prepared with much thought and care to provide for a suitable building for the congressional library, because, forsooth, the plans submitted did not contemplate the erection of an edifice of the rigid simplicity of a barn. Again, because the P. O. D. is at last placed on a paying basis, nothing will do but that immediately a bill must be brought in to reduce the postage on letters to two cents. As this would make a large deficiency it is proposed to partly cover it by an increased rate on merchandise. To the ordinary mind it would appear more sensible to utilize the surplus by increasing the mail facilities and by reducing the rates on newspapers which will very well stand readjustment. It is rather amusing just now to see Robeson et al. crying for reform. If this had been tried at the last session the effect might have been different, but at this late day the assumed penitence is only ridiculous. The country places no confidence in any reform by this Congress but rests its hope in the new one, fresh from the people.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

A topic of great interest here is the speakership problem and countless plans are being laid by the rival candidates. Of these the most prominent are Randall, Carlisle and Blackburn. Keifer is not a candidate. If a prediction is in order I would say that from the best information I can get it seems most likely that Randall will be the winning man. This I regard as unfortunate, but true, as Randall is a consummate master of the intricate acts of wire-pulling and vote-fixing.

THE STAR ROUTE TRIAL.

The Star Route trial is now fairly under way, the jury completed and Bliss' opening speech finished. The jury at this trial is not nearly so intelligent as at the last. The fact is much to the disadvantage of the prosecution. Brady in conversation with your correspondent remarked that the rulings of Judge Wylie were infamous. "If this was a state court," he observed, "he would have been impeached long ago, but," he added, waving his hand toward the capitol, "it is hard to get them to do anything up there." In his opening address Bliss referred to a United States senator as a paid agent of the defendants. Much speculation is indulged in as to who it is. Bliss at present refuses to disclose the name, but intimates that the senator will be called as a witness during the progress of the case.

THE DUKE OF NEWCASTLE.

For the last few days the upper crust Britannia were portion of Washington society has been in a state of mind closely bordering on frenzy, owing to the diabolical treatment that the young Duke of Newcastle has undergone while in this city. It appears that on his arrival he went to Wormley's—one of the ultra-fashionable hosteleries of the place and registered as plain Newcastle. This was unpardonably rash on the Duke's part, for the hotel clerk proceeded to size him up, and with brutal ignorance arrived at the conclusion that he was a very mediocre common-place looking young man and assigned him a room on the top floor, as his idea of what the extent of the pocket of the new guest was. This was the first blow and the aforesaid u. c. b. w. s. was intensely indignant. But the crowning stroke was dealt on Sunday and the British colony, with its American adjunct, was almost reduced to apoplexy. Newcastle visited St. John's church (President Arthur's place of worship) and after entering the church was kept waiting by the low, vulgar cowl of a sexton till the pew-holders were attended to. The British minister has not yet discontinued diplomatic relations with this government.

The gossips still continue to marry the president off with untiring persistency. Miss Crowley, daughter of Representative Crowley, of New York, is the alleged fortunate young lady just now.

The social season has opened with a whirl and will be kept up with unflagging zeal until Lent hushes the gaiety of the fashionable world.

The Bankrupt Bill which has been considered shelved for this session will be brought before the Senate on the 15th of January by Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, who has constituted himself its champion.

The Democrats of the 17th Ohio district have nominated Ross J. Alexander as a candidate to fill the vacancy in Congress caused by the death of Dr. J. T. Updegraff.

The committee on pensions have agreed to report a bill granting pensions to all the survivors of the Mexican war. It will be presented to Congress on the 3d Monday in January.

The New York Sun strongly favors reduction of the taxes on tobacco. It says: They are peculiarly oppressive. They interfere with the industry and the privacy of thousands of people of small means, who pursue their trade in their own houses and in little shops, where they are worried by detectives and blackmailers who belong to the internal revenue establishment or hang upon its skirts. The liquor taxes are collected with comparative ease and freedom from immorality. They may stand, but the tobacco taxes should be wiped out.

A CASE of holiday generosity in a neighboring county is this reported by the Mercury: James Dooley went to an adjoining county to see a rich uncle. He knew he would be given something nice before he left and his heart was made glad when his rich uncle called him up and gave him two books "for the children." They were almanacs for 1880.

The steady increase of taxation may be seen at a glance from the following tables of internal and customs revenue during the past five fiscal years:

1878.....	$240,755,304
1879.....	250,811,657
1880.....	210,531,437
1881.....	333,424,061
1882.....	365,202,688

The surplus the present year is over $145,000,000. The result of this excessive and unnecessary taxation is an enormous surplus which will increase from year to year.

The supreme court of the United States, by a decision rendered on Monday, sustains the constitutional power of congress to make it an offense against the United States for one of the employees of the government to solicit or receive from any other employe money for political purposes. One Curtis, in whose case the decision was rendered, was remanded to the custody of the marshal of the southern district of New York, to be dealt with as provided by the law. The decision has been long looked for and is received with much interest.

THURSDAY EVE., DEC. 21, 1882.

ROSSER & MCCARTHY,
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

TO OLD SANTA CLAUS.

We, the little ones of Maysville, respectfully represent that we have seen many of the articles named by the holiday advertisers in the Bulletin, and as we are pleased with them, we respectfully ask you to make your selections from their stocks. By so doing you will greatly gratify THE LITTLE FOLKS.

NOAH'S ARKS and Jumping-Jacks
And dolls of every line,
Painted monkeys on a stick
And drums and rattles too;
The wooden hog, exactly like
Our own protected squealer,
Can all be had if you will go
And call on Johnny Wheeler.

GET your stocking ready.

THE BONANZA and Katie Stockdale passed up last night.

CASSIDAY & YOUNG have sold their grocery business to John W. Watson.

THE Cincinnati concert company will give an entertainment at the opera house on the 29th inst.

A SHORT, cold winter is now predicted by Yenor. Instead of the long cold one announced some time ago.

It is reported that two young ladies at Lexington, are preparing themselves for a professional life on the stage.

SUMATRA tobacco is the newest thing in Maysville. It is dark and strong, and is used mostly for cigar wrappers.

THE Emmet Rifles will meet at their armory this evening to elect a second lieutenant in place of John Short, resigned. All the members are asked to be present.

NEARLY two hundred shares of stock have already been subscribed in the class just opened by the Building Association. The limit will probably be reached by the time the annual meeting is held in January.

THE Kentucky Central railroad will sell round trip tickets on 22nd 23rd and 25th of December to all stations good until January 2nd next. This is a good chance to take a cheap run to the country during the holidays for those who have been pent up.

"SIXTEEN ounces to the pound" is the business motto of T. Hierley's Sons, and a very good one it is. They live up to it to the letter and no one places a dollar with them who does not get the full value in return. Their stock of groceries is fresh, well selected and low in price. Go and see the boys.

INVITATIONS are out for a grand masquerade ball at the Riverside Hotel, this city, December 29th. The managers of the affair are Messrs. J. K. Toup, W. L. Prosser, B. H. Thomas, W. W. Gibson, Chas. Shepherd, A. C. Sorries, Chas. Hancock, and L. Culbertson. The arrangements have been completed, and a pleasant time is anticipated.

THE cooking club at Germantown and neighborhood will meet to-morrow, the 22nd inst., at the house of Miss Sue Worthington. The meetings heretofore have been well attended and of much interest to the members and their friends. The club is very skilled in the culinary art, and its work has been awarded premiums at all the local fairs.

MAYSVILLE enjoys a considerable foreign trade. J. H. Hall & Co., have been for years supplying plows to customers in Mexico, Brazil, the West Indies and elsewhere. Recently Owens & Barkley received an order from Brazil for a large number of their celebrated steel cotton hoes, which are extensively used there. About the same time Zech & Co., received an order from the same country for a lot of their hames, collars and backbands which are considered the best that can be had there. This speaks well for the enterprise of Maysville.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Hunting in Harems.

CAIRO, December 20.—A great deal of excitement was caused here by orders given to the several bodies of Circassian guards to search the harems for prisoners who were condemned by the courts martial, and whose property was confiscated by decree of the Khedive. They were supposed to be concealed in some of the harems. The ladies in their houses and their guests were grossly insulted and prevented from leaving their rooms. The wife of Ali Fahmy was so indignant at the treatment to which she and her friends were subjected that she rushed out of the house when the Khedive was passing and overwhelmed him with reproaches.

Owing to this and other strong representations the order was rescinded and the inmates allowed ingress and egress. The list of the accused and sentences suggested for the approval of the council of ministers has been sent in and a final decree will be issued to-day.

A Peculiar Decision.

NEW YORK, December 20.—In the action of the government against three packages of distilled spirits, which had been originally properly stamped, but afterwards, when part had been drawn off and water added to the packages, were seized by the government as not of the proof indicated by the stamp, Judge Brown to-day held that "the mere addition of water is not a fraud. The suggestion that the stamp must correspond with the proof spirits as a means of identification is argumentative only, and is not warranted by law." Judgment given for defendant.

Bankrupt Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Mr. Hoar said he had seen statements in public print that the committee had recommended a provision in the bankruptcy bill to the effect that dealings in futures should be in itself an act of bankruptcy. "This," he said, "is a mistake. The provision applies only to persons who are actually insolvent."

A Frightful Fall.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Dec. 20.—Lawrence Brosky, watchman on the bridge here, in attempting to board an engine last night, slipped and fell a distance of 223 feet, breaking his neck, crushing his head and killing him instantly.

Not Worth Ransoming.

MATAMORAS, MEX., December 20.—The town of Ahuacatlan, Puebla, was yesterday attacked by forty bandits, who captured the Mayor, Justice of the Peace, and an Alderman. They are holding them for a ransom.

For Blackmailing.

NEW YORK, December 20.—General Curtis convicted of violation of the law in collecting assessments from office holders for political purposes, paid his fine of $1,000 to-day, and was discharged from custody.

Fred and Lillie.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—Gebhardt's luggage is registered at the Bellevue Hotel where Langtry is staying.

C. S. Miner & Bro.—Slippers, overshoes, etc.
J. W. Sparks & Bro.—Fancy and staple dry goods.

These are among the leading business firms of the city, and the stocks exhibited cannot fail to suit all purses and tastes. Our readers are asked to remember them when making their Christmas purchases.

Holt & Co., the well known grocer, has received a very choice stock of holiday goods that can be bought at the most reasonable prices. He has many new articles that will be found very useful in helping to make up the Christmas bill of fare. Fresh goods and low prices is his motto as usual.

Sales of Land.

The following changes in the ownership of land have been recorded at the office of the Clerk of the County Court, since our last report:

Emily S. Hunter and husband to Oscar B. Thomas, the undivided one-sixth interest in 122 acres, 1 road and 22 poles. Consideration $700.
James W. Berry and wife to John J. White, 37 poles of land. Consideration $37.
Rial Banyon to Horace Banyon, 5 acres and 26 poles of land. Consideration $1.40.
William G. Vincent and wife to Garrett S. Wall, grantors' in house and lot on the north-east corner of Cherry Alley and Second street. Consideration $1,500.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mrs. Ann Muleahy, of this city, leaves to-day on a visit to her son, at Anniston, Alabama.

Mr. John Everett, express messenger on the Telegraph, is here on a short visit to his relatives.

Mr. Thomas F. Donovan, of Winchester, Ky., is in Maysville to spend the holidays with his relatives.

Mrs. Wurtz left by rail yesterday for her home in Rome, Ga. Miss Metcalfe also left at the same time for Natchez, Miss.

Amateur Skill.

A representative of the BULLETIN has lately seen the following specimens of the skill of Maysville amateurs:

A Japanese quilt made by Mrs. John Lovel, of East Maysville, containing thirty squares, handsomely embroidered, and novel in design.

A child's carriage and two sleds, the work of James H. Hall, Jr. They would do credit to the skill of any workman in the country. They are designed as Christmas presents for his children.

A large lot of delicate fret-work scroll sawing by a son of Mr. H. H. Cox, Court street. The designs are very beautiful and the work very neat.

A handsome, large sled by Geo. Fleming, of East Maysville. The painting and general finish is especially creditable.

"Kenos's Annual" for 1883 has just been issued and as usual it is a very handsome piece of typography. "We feel safe in saying no better piece of work was ever executed in the state. It is worth preserving as a specimen of what a Maysville printer can do."

What is There for Me?

The year is nearly over, it's toils nearly ended. We want rest and recreation. We want a brief time to forget the thorns and briars, the wrongs that have smarted and tried, the world's increasing fight. Yes, we want something more—the Christmas holidays are here and we want nice presents. Every person will say, what is there for me? Let us tell you. J. W. Sparks & Bro. are alive to the wants of the people and have anticipated them in advance and have brought on many nice things, elegant linen and silk handkerchiefs, fine hosiery, gloves, laces, scarfs, collars, hats, caps, cloaks for the holiday trade, and they are at prices all can buy. In addition they have a large stock. It is no sensational statement that the bottom has been knocked out of prices and they are offering astonishing bargains at J. W. Sparks & Bro.'s on Market street. d19d6t

A Model Poet Says:

Long had I looked and searched and sought,
Both Stoves and Ranges, too, I bought:
And every kind on earth I tried,
And yet with none felt satisfied,
Hope shed at last one dazzling ray,
The "Omaha" I saw one day;
I found at length the thing I sought—
I went—examined it—and bought.

CHOICES.

The "Omaha!" The "Omaha!"
To buy it is house-keeping law,
Search through the north, south, east and west,
The "Omaha" you'll find the best.

California Marriages.

In all cases the expense of the marriage should be borne by the bride's family, who are tacitly understood to be getting the best of the bargain.

In cases where the bride had been twice divorced previously, or is a little off-color, so to speak, a quiet marriage by a Justice of the Peace is best. His regular price by law is two dollars, but if the bride is a regular customer he should knock off twenty-five or fifty cents, according to circumstances.

In case the bride occupies a pretty good position and her friends are expected to come down handsomely, the letters "P. P.," meaning "policeman present," should be appended to the invitation. This will insure safety for the napkin rings and sets of spoons, though a relative of the family should always be detailed to watch the policeman.

The Van Ness avenue custom is for the bride's father to place some Government bonds or a check for $10,000 among the presents, it being a point of honor with the groom to let it alone after the ceremony until the old gentleman can take it back or tear it up. It is always best strictly to regard this, as it is awkward to present the check at the bank and be told that there are no funds.

In writing out an account of the affair for the newspapers, the bride should always be referred to as "blushing." It is always well to make this kind of a bluff, as it looks well and nobody can deny it, even if she has not been known to blush for years before.

In case of a marriage by a clergyman, courtesy demands that the groom present him with a five dollar bill. Courtesy gets "left," however, very often since stocks are down.

If the groom be over sixty and the bride under twenty, as is often the case in San Francisco, she should never presume on any occasion to forget the respect due to age. The custom here is always to refer to him jocularly when he is present as "you wretched boy," and when he is absent as "grandpa."

References to the past should always be mutually avoided in second marriages, as comparisons of this kind are odorous.

When the husband is kept late at the office and comes home tired, with his eyes crossed and a pensive expression, the wife should never permit her feelings to get away with her. In case he should hang his boots on the hall-rack and place his hat outside the bedroom door to be polished, she should reason gently with him and use no argument stronger than a club.

In preparing the family register the names of former husbands or wives are not inserted, nor are any offspring of previous marriages referred to, save in a separate progeny ledger devoted to that particular venture.

The tin wedding, which used to take place at the end of five years of matrimony, is obsolete in California, having been replaced by the silver wedding at that period which is rare. The tin wedding now takes place at the end of one year, and if the parties are living together on speaking terms at the end of that period it is a season of rejoicing. These reunions are very rare, however.

WIT AND WISDOM.

—Dean Stanley said: "The best remedy for all evils is to look forward."

—It is more common to make a virtue of necessity than a necessity of virtue. Boston Transcript.

—The true way to make children behave is to behave yourself, but many parents never think of this.

—The general opinion is that a lady is always a lady; but under a recent ruling of the Post-office Department she may become a mail-route messenger or carrier. Lowell Courier.

—A gentleman who lives near a certain "springs" was asked whether there were woodcock in that vicinity. "There ought to be plenty," said he, "for I never heard of anybody killing any."

—The Duke of Edinburgh tried to introduce the custom of men wearing bracelets on the left arm. The custom is followed to some extent in this country, but the jewelry is made of iron. Burlington Hawkeye.

—People needn't wonder at the scarcity of good servant girls. The good always die young, anyway, if they have to take to lighting the fire with kerosene to make the proverb come true. Lowell Citizen.

—Recipe for Angels: "Mamma, what makes angels?" asked a little boy, who had been reading of the Heavenly inhabitants. The mother glanced out into the orchard, and, with a warning look, solemnly replied: "Unripe fruit, my dear." N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

—A good Connecticut deacon, Josiah Smith, having heard all about the New York confidence men who address strangers in the streets and pretend to know their names and all about them, knocked one of them down with his heavy carpet-bag containing his Bible and heavy boots in the Grand Central depot the other day for saying "Hullo, Cousin Josiah." "You can't fool me!" said the old man as he floored the young one in skin-tight pants and toothpick shoes. But when it turned out that the young man really was his cousin, who had been sent to the depot to meet him, the old farmer was not so sure that you "can't fool him." Detroit Free Press.
